Preparing last week for BJC's annual art show in the science building were art instructor, Mr. Louis Peck and Sharon Kratz. The "Junior Grandma Moore" on the ladder is Mr. Peck's daughter who has an exhibit of her own in the show. Featured in the exhibit, which is open now and runs through next Sunday, May 17, is this year's work in ceramics, mosaics, graphics, oil painting, water color and the commercial field.

Among the more than 300 guests who visited the show last Sunday were two prominent Idaho artists, members of the Idaho Artists' association, who said that this was the best exhibit BJC had ever put on and the best show they had seen this year. They added that they thought the Boise Art Gallery should take the best of the pictures and hold a city exhibit.

Mr. Peck noted that this was an opportunity for the people of Boise valley to see the results of the year's work by the students in the BJC art department, and anyone interested in purchasing paintings, ceramics or mosaics should contact the students of their instructors about prices.

B-Cubes Sponsor Annual Cotton Swing

Students danced to the music of Glib Hochstrasser in the Student Union ballroom, Saturday night, May 9, at the annual "Cotton Swing," sponsored by the B-Cubes.

The dance began at 9:00, and the floor was filled with whirling starched cottons as a sign that spring has finally sprung.

Vice President Guest of U.S.A.F.

Vice President W. L. Gottenberg was guest of the United States Air Force recruiting service group at the aerial fire power demonstrations in Elgin Air Force base in Florida, May 5.

The route traveled was from Boise to Sacramento the first day. The second day to El Paso, Texas, and the third day to Montgomery, Alabama. After the fire power demonstration, he returned to Montgomery and on Wednesday morning left for Salt Lake City, stopping at Denver to refuel and returned to Boise Thursday morning, covering some 5,600 miles and flying over 14 different states.

Mr. Gottenberg said it was almost impossible to describe the aerial demonstration except to say that the Air Force put on a show of its latest fighting equipment and demonstrated it with the famous Thunderbirds doing acrobatics.

Hurry, Sophomores

Miss Helen Moore, commencement chairman, has issued a final call for all sophomores who have not been measured for their caps and gowns to do so immediately.

Measurements are taken in the student affairs office, room 121, daily during school hours. Any student who does not avail himself of cap and gown will not be allowed to participate in the commencement exercises.

During intermission, Jack Beers sang the theme song of the dance, "Swinging Sweethearts."

General chairman for this event was Gail Hannon, B-Cube president. Working on decorations were Rena Schartner and Carolyn Gasser. Teddy Akana handled the publicity with Nancy Wilson doing the invitations and Ann Thornock and Deena McAfee the programs.

BJC's Photographer...

At this time of year, when many colleges and universities send "exchange" copies of their yearbooks, we cannot help but compare them with our own LES BOIS. This, of course, is the reason the exchange of publications is maintained among colleges. It is customary to maintain the same arrangement of exchange with college newspapers. The ROUNDUP is sent to some 70 institutions each week, and the editorial staff receives about the same number of papers from other colleges.

We cannot help but notice (with justifiable pride) that the degree of excellence in photography evident in the BJC publications is consistently professional and, as a consequence, well above par for student publications. The reason for BJC's stratum of quality in published photography is found in the combined proficiency and dedication of the college's official photographer, Mr. Frank Carr.

Photos of college activities are standard items which are easily taken for granted by the casual reader. Actually, each photo must be planned, arranged, snapped, developed, printed, cropped, engraved and edited each step a well-defined process which takes time and know-how.

Through every school week, Mr. Carr snaps his camera on an average of 40 to 50 times. In doing this, he makes it a point to attend every official BJC function. His pictures, whether or not they are printed, become a matter of photographic record and enter into the history of the college.

The ROUNDUP staff would indeed be remiss in gratitude if they did not take official recognition of the amount of excellent art copy which Mr. Carr makes available to the paper.

We are well aware that there are times when we have called upon Mr. Carr to undertake assignments requiring time and mileage well beyond the dictates of duty. It is only the most serious of time conflicts that will keep him off the scene and in such occasions he usually supplies a substitute photographer.

If we may judge by exchange papers, the BJC publications are close to the top in photographic excellence. It is a comfortable feeling for the publication staffs of BJC to know that when Frank Carr draws a bead with his camera, the picture is going to be printable and top-notch.

Student of the Week

Sharon Paul

Sharon Paul, newly elected vice president of Boise Junior college student council, has been chosen student of the week.

She attended Boise High school, where she was editor of the Highlights, and a member of the Forum club.

A freshman, Sharon is taking a liberal arts course and is undecided about her future career, explaining that she intends to write a book sometime in the immediate future.

Her main interests include water skiing, motorcycling, meeting people, and writing poetry. One of her poems has been published in the National Anthology of College Poetry.

This summer, Sharon will attend the BJC-sponsored European tour.

Her philosophy is: "People should be interested in everything and do just as many interesting things as possible."

BJC Choristers Back From Tour

At the return of BJC choir's 25th mile trip to San Diego, Calif., where they participated in the National Federated Music Clubs of America annual conference, Mr. J. Griffith Bratt noted some of the highlights of the tour.

Among them was an unscheduled appearance at the San Luis Rey mission in Southern California.

Another was their participation in a choral workshop where they offered examples of Gregorian chant as it was rendered prior to the 14th century.

They also appeared in a choral festival held at Balboa park where they participated with 400 voices and sang four modern American selections.

During the convention, the choir rendered two of Mr. Bratt's original compositions.

Following the Roundup's editorial which mentioned Lawrence Welk's March 17 musical program, Mr. Welk thanked the editorial staff and, in his letter to Dr. Gardner, he said:

The president of the club for students also to visit one of the friendly clubs by Mrs. Martha Fenton, the president's secretary.

"The things I do in my work here," she said, "are personal contacts with students as well as members." Mrs. Fenton is the president's secretary for the year now. She is from Stanford with a M.A. She majored in Spanish.

Mrs. Fenton is also a teacher at Boise High and also in Southern California, Junior High.

She taught Spanish at Boise High and also in Southern California, Junior High.

Mrs. Martha Fenton

compiled a complete course of instruction on Esperanto, the universal language, as an introductory language course, and was teaching it successfully when the club broke out and it was necessary to discontinue it.

In her secretarial experience, she has served as secretary to attorneys general of Idaho and assistant to a president of the University of Idaho in his membership in a special White House conference.

Her favorite hobby is travel. She has visited eight European countries, spending a month in Spain, and has also toured Mexico. Even though her foreign travel has been extensive, she has enjoyed New Orleans in Louisiana which she has visited several times on business trips with her husband, better than any other place she has ever been, especially the French Quarter where she is famous. "Travel is something that will live with you the rest of your life," she says, "and many of the things you see are much more interesting."

Creative Writing Student Composes Poem On Love, Friendship With God

Defining poem, "Friendship," was written by Christina Cunningham, a student in the evening creative writing class.

FRIENDSHIP

In a dream, last night, I had a faithful friend,
Who knew the very heart and soul of me and yet
He was my friend, someone to remember, and to seek
When the gray clouds of doubt, and suffocating terrors
Enveloped me with their penetrating thoroughness, and Left me desolated of all other feeling, safe
De-stained, swirling, magnetic magnetism of deep and Agitated waters wherein the very thought
Of my being, breathing, feeling, seeing, seemed
To shroud me with indescribable bewilderment
Who am I? Whence came I? Why or whether must I go
I asked, and without question, in the triple lands of Faith, Hope and Love."

It was as if these I went to him
He was not the superficial shell of brightness
But a rugged indifference, but
He was the facade, and underneath
De-termining worms of uncertainty and gloom, which
Creeping at my heart, burrowed their insidious way
Anchored to the very citadel of my Immortal Soul,
And there were the weakening, terrifying toxins
Of his doubts. He understood. He guided me.
Not by the dumb prattlings of so many lip-believers, but
By the gentlest of his love and faith.
And in mankind's myriad disorders, that out of these
Came a stable, sound philosophy.

He was my very thoughts without their utterance
You see that picture on the wall? The sky, the trees,
The face, the life. It but reflects the beauty that the scene
Lies at heart in the heart of its creator.
You see, I think me stupid, blind, insensitive.
Well, I say, "That picture was not made, it came there
Of its own accord, it has no author." So it is with life.
Darkness could such beauty, love,
And yet longing for perfection in the human soul
Ever there without origin? Someone created these
Who but an Omnipotent Artist, Who made the birds, the trees,
The sea, the sea; The Everlasting Light, Who made all things,
And in the end reproduced His Own Image in you and me?"

I asked with a start,
"But God? I live! I love! I believe! I return Thee thanks
For all these, and furthermore, he is no dream
I thank Thee for my friend!"

Vets Advised Late GI Loan Payments May Be Costly

Despite what some veterans may believe, there is no grace period on GI loans, VA said.

Failure to do so may prove costly, VA pointed out, since GI lenders may make an extra service charge when payments are received late.

VA warned that veterans who gain the reputation of being "chronic delinquents" will find their lenders taking that fact into account if the veterans should ever need an extension of repayment time on their GI loans.

In addition to their loss of credit standing, veterans who become delinquent in their payments may ultimately be faced with the loss of the property acquired with their GI loans, VA said.

Dr. Baker Hosts Dr. B. E. Looney

Dr. B. E. Looney, professor emeritus of the State college at Denton, Texas, will be the guest of Dr. Paul E. Baker at the BJC commencement.

Dr. Baker plans to reside in Denton after his retirement from BJC at the end of the school term, and Dr. Looney will accompany him on his trip to Texas.

CAMPUS QUERY

Question: What is one of the books you have especially enjoyed reading?

Larry Stark: I enjoyed reading "Pilgrims Progress" because I had to for English literature.

Bunky Fifer: "On the Beach" by Nevil Shute. I enjoyed the book because I think it expresses what eventually will happen to humanity—radiation poisoning.

Warren Wilde: "The Earth Is the Lord's" by Taylor Caldwell, which is the story of the rise of Genghis Kahn and a tremendous book of pagan lore.

Jan Gantner: My German book. Brenda Griffin: A book called the "Long, Long Trailer," which

I really got a big boot out of. I enjoyed the book much more than the movie.

Paul Kantack: "Dr. Zhivago," that modern Russian novel that won the Nobel prize.

Amey Swanson: "Mother Goose Rhymes."

Charlie Brown: "Diary" by Shankweiler.

Marsha Hallett: Perry Mason's murders.

Erma Smith: "I enjoyed 'The Robe' because I like to read Roman novels.

Holly Black: I don't remember any books I've ever read, except "Black Beauty."

Carol Wetterhus: I love to read Carmichael.

Bob Jones: The one I remember most is John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men."

Steve Glade: I was always the smallest kid in the class and "Paul Bunyan" was always my hero because he was so big.

Susan Huff: I like funny books. Dennis the Menace really kills me.

William Malmberg: "Donald Duck, because I like Grandma, I'm waiting for her car to tip over.

Keith Jones: "The Cross of Iron" by Willy Heinrich. It's about the Germany army in Russia and two men who were caught behind the lines.

Earl Fulkerson: "Crime and Punishment" because of the way the Russian author approached the workings of the mind.

Wendy Weaver: "Thudwick, the Big-Hearted Moose."

Frank Stava: The "Divine Comedy" by Dante.

CAMPUS STYLES

By Sharon Paul

It seems like everybody has one article of clothing they like to wear more than any other. For my sister, Sally, who's a real horse-woman, it's a pair of blue jeans. For my dad it's a great big five-gallon hat. I like to wear by old army surplus shirt that comes down to my knees, and a pair of boots. I know an old man up in the hills who never has any troubles about what he likes to wear best because he's never changed his clothes all his life. He just wears something until it begins to show through and then puts something on over it.

Anyway, go down and look at the Catalina Active Girl tee shirts at Anderson's. They're only $3.98 and believe me they're a sporty looking shirt meant to be worn in or out, in gold, tan, blue white, and red.

The White Stag pinstripe polo shirt for $3.98 is also a corker. I know you'll like to wear your clothes . . . if they are from Anderson's.

U. S. Coast Guard Establishes Unit

The United States Coast Guard today announced plans for establishment of an organized reserve unit in Boise to provide training for young men of southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon.

The Boise unit of the Coast Guard reserve would be a port security unit, trained for protection of harbors and waterfronts against espionage, sabotage, fire and other disaster. Participants in the weekly drills of the unit will receive the pay, advancement and retirement benefits provided by reserve units of other components of the armed services in Boise.

Members of the unit also will take part in annual two-week training duty with full pay and allowances.

Lieutenant Jaime Gruger, acting officer in charge of the Boise Coast Guard unit, said weekly training periods tentatively are scheduled for Monday evenings at the Boise Naval and Marine Corps Reserve training center when the unit is organized. Training for the reservists will include such subjects as anti-sabotage, counter-espionage, fire fighting, fire prevention, radiological defense, boarding and inspection of merchant vessels in harbors and waterfront areas.

Gruger said billets for officers, petty officers and recruits are open. He said the Coast Guard particularly desires men who are experienced in intelligence work, law enforcement, fire fighting, and boat handling. Veterans of any armed service will be given special consideration for ratings.

Young men 17½ years of age and older without previous military service may enlist in the Coast Guard Reserve for six months active duty, after which they become affiliated with a reserve unit.

Direct commissions in the Coast Guard Reserve, without any requirement for extended active duty, are open to former or inactive officers of any service and to qualified veterans with extensive experience in electronics, communications, electrical or civil engineering, finance and accounting, intelligence, education or public information; or veterans who are college graduates.

Gruger urged all former coast-guardsmen and other interested
